David and Mick Taylor play Subbuteo after school every Friday night. Happy to play together, they enjoy it all the more when Dad is there to give a 'real life' commentary. One Friday night Dad arrives late and things feel different. Although the boys are aware of the tension, they can't anticipate how it will disintegrate their lives or what it will take to bring them, unexpectedly, all together again. Common everyday events are seen in a fresh light, reminding us again and again that it's the small things in our lives that are the most precious.
